CHADBOURNE AND WIGHT FAMILIES HONORED AT TREE FARM DEDICATION

Four new Chadbourne and three Wight Tree Farms were dedicated along with a group of other Oxford County Tree Farms at a meeting of the Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District held on June 10 at South Paris.

A Tree Farm is an area of privately owned forest land dedicated by its owner to the growing and harvesting of repeated forest crops.

All new tree farm owners were presented certificates and tree farm signs by Howard Charles, District Forester of the Maine Forest Service, who cited some of the forest management activities of the Chadbourne family. Abbott Ladd, Supervisor of Oxford Paper Company's Tree Farm Family represented the Maine Tree Farm Committee and presented remarks about the Maine Tree Farm Program. Kerry Hucks, Oxford Paper Company Tree Farm Forester also presented Tree Farm awards to some of the new tree farmers.

Also on hand for the event was Richard Waldron, P. H. Chadbourne and Company forester. Mr. Waldron is a recently past chairman of the Maine Tree Farm Committee.

The following newly certified Tree Farms were dedicated.

P. H. Chadbourne and Company with 33,000 acres located in Oxford and other counties. It represents a high level of management with 500 acres in plantations. Robert Chadbourne, 200 acres located in Bethel represents multiple use management and supports a good all weather road system.

Ted Chadbourne, 70 acres located in Bethel where management activities include a recent harvest cut on 30 acres.

Tom and Nancy Chadbourne, 75 acres in East Waterford where timber has currently been harvested on 60 acres.

Stanley Scott (Pine Knoll Farm), 50 acres located in West Paris.

F. Owen and Paul Wight, 322 acres located in Grafton.

F. Owen and Sue L. Wight, 180 acres located in Newry.

Willard A. and Sylvia B. Wight, 485 acres located in Newry.

Mabel Ferris (River Valley Farm), 100 acres located in Canton.

Norris Conant and Sons, 75 acres in Canton.

The American Tree Farm System is a nationwide program sponsored by the Nation's wood-using industries through the American Forest Institute. Its purpose is to encourage private forest landowners to protect and manage their forest resources for the production of repeated crops of forest products along with all of the other benefits of improved wildlife habitat, watershed protection, and opportunities for outdoor recreation. By giving public recognition to those who are doing an outstanding job of woodland management, it is hoped to encourage others to do likewise.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Although the Assessors have not computed all the valuations for 1975 indications are there will be no increase in the tax rate this year. The county tax doubled which was anticipated prior to town meeting. At that time we expected a drop of 3 mills but Legislative changes in the School Tax prevented that.

A change in the State law which will have a serious impact on welfare costs is the use of 100% State valuation instead of 50% in computing reimbursement to municipalities. Until July 1, 1975 we received 90% back from the State for any amount spent over $345 per month. The new law means the town of Bethel will pay $200 per month before being eligible for the 90% reimbursement. This year to the end of May we have expended $5449. The State reimbursed $3945 of this amount. Under the new law we would not receive any of this reimbursement.

S. A. D. 44 BOARD HELD REGULAR MEETING MONDAY

The board of directors of M. S. A. D. 44 held a regular meeting in the Telstar Auditorium on Monday evening of this week.

During the citizens' portion of the meeting, Mrs. Phyllis Coolidge, Mrs. Cynthia Cox, and William Jordan indicated that they had heard rumors that the Locke Mills School would not be used for Locke Mills pupils in 1975-76. Discussion ensued with the presentation by Edward Flynn, Bethel elementary principal, of tentative kindergarten assignments for the 1975-76 school year, prepared by Mr. Flynn, James Johnston, Woodstock-Locke Mills principal, and Transportation personnel concerning morning and afternoon sessions at the Bethel, Locke Mills and Woodstock schools.

Further discussion and possible action on material related to kindergarten assignments for the 1975-76 school year was tabled until the July 21 meeting of the directors, to be held at Telstar. It was stipulated that adequate public notice should be given of the meeting and of the matters to be discussed.

Telstar Principal Brian Flynn presented the directors tentative plans involving a basic change in Telstar scheduling for the 1975-76 school year. A change from an eight period day to seven periods is planned, as well as utilizing a smaller staff, necessitated by a reduction of personnel because of budget considerations. The tentative seven period class day was approved by the directors. Mr. Flynn was also instructed to set down arrangements for a proposed faculty advisor/student relationship, with the addition that he report to the board on how the arrangements will be set up and later report on their functioning.

Transportation Supervisor Sonny Blake presented requests from the Town of Andover and a Learning Disability Camp in Albany for the use of vehicles during the summer months. The Andover request involves a bus for one day in August. The Albany camp would require a unit for three hours a day, for a three week period. To be approved such use must be by a municipal or quasi municipal group, or a tax exempt educational endeavor; and those using the vehicle must pay the driver, cost of gasoline, insurance and lubrication, plus 10 cents a mile to S. A. D. 44. The board approved such vehicle use, subject to the conditions noted.

The directors voted to accept the bid of W. J. Wheeler and Company of South Paris to provide insurance coverage for the district for a three year period at an annual cost of $24,022. A motion to extend the period for filing bid quotations to July 7, and another to reject all bids were defeated.

— Mrs. Collette Morgan, Corres. —
Like the sea itself, the shore fascinates us so we return to it each year. It is a strange, beautiful place. It changes with the swing of the tides, belonging now to the land, then to the sea. Each time I return there as I did last week, I gain some new awareness of its beauty and its deeper meaning.

North Haven in June wasn't as advanced in its "lupine beauty" as when we visited it, a little later than this, in 1973.

We took the early morning ferry from Rockland and that day was perfect for a ride of some over an hour. All the way it was peaceful and calm, clear and sparkling.

On arrival we went to the west side of the island facing the Camden Hills and Rockland across the Penobscot Bay.

On our ride through town there were lilacs of white and purple almost everywhere. They stood by the roadside, next to a wall, in a field, near stones, or where once stood a home, as well as in many yards.

Then we came upon two flowering crab trees; little puffs of light against the rich green and the sea beyond. There was an arching blue bow from rim to rim. As I stopped for a picture there was a waiting silence except for the birds that sang and the hum of bees where the trees stretched their arms. I hardly dared breathe lest I shatter this radiant mass of white. I hoped the wind and the bees hurrying past would let the loveliness last.

We had lunch, then went to the beach and flats for clams. Nearby the gulls glided with effortless grace, outlined against the sky, piercing the cove with their awesome call, hitting the water as lightly as a feather might fall then standing motionless, seemingly carved from stone.

It had been a long day for we had been up since four a. m. in order to make the boat on time. I, for one, was ready to go to bed very early.

Some time toward morning the rain and wind came. It was really wild! Twice during the day my brother-in-law had to pump out his boat, and tie it over in another position.

The next day the rain had subsided but the winds were January in June.

We went to the shore where we could watch the waves. The surf released all its tremendous energy as it broke against the shore; sometimes delivering blows of almost incredible violence. When the tide is rising, as it was then, the shore is a place of unrest, with the surge leaping high over jutting rocks and running in lacy cascades of foam over the landward side of massive boulders.

By noon the weather had changed and so we ate on the beach. Here the red columbine, its darling loveliness and jewel-like flowers were gleaming in a nook of their own and surely at times washed by the sea. I was surprised to find them so near the water for at home they are usually found high on the ledges.

By a small brook flowing to the beach were the green leaves of the skunk cabbage, our earliest spring flower. It, of course, was not in blossom. I have never seen the blossom, a small egg-shaped, brownish - flower which hides within a protective hood. We went to investigate it. Flowers are like people; when you don't know a man's name or anything about him, you usually have only a passing interest in him. But once you know him you greet him differently. So it is with flowers; your interest in wild flowers soon becomes a way to increased awareness. Wild flowers and their ways tell you much that is new and different, if you listen, look, smell, and feel—if you are curious and if you wonder.

There were rafts of ducks and a few seals beyond the breakers where they were crashing and the lacy spume was leaping high.

We picnicked with our fire glowing and the sound of timeless waves as they crested and crashed upon the shore.

Again that night the skies wept and the east wind sang a dirge.

Sunday, our last day was cloudy until some time in the afternoon when we again went to the beach.

One of my favorite approaches to a rocky sea coast is by a rough path through an evergreen forest that has its own enchantment. This is the road to Mullen's Head where we went today. I have seen it when fog drifts in from the sea beyond. By the road and paths, are green woodland mosses with now and then tufts of the bearded lichens which hang from branches like bits of sea mist tangled there. In the quiet, even the voice of the surf is reduced to a whispered echo and the sounds of the forest are ghosts of sounds, faint sighing evergreen needles, bark rubbing against bark, and a dead branch broken under the feet of a squirrel and sent bounding and ricocheting toward earth. Then the path finally brings us out of dimness to where we meet the boom of the sea, falling away, rising again. Today, for a time, the mists of fog merged off shore in a dim and vaporous world. Then shortly came a change; the forming of a rainbow.

Someone first remarked, "Look at the colors over there in the field!"

That's where it started. There was a sudden flush of colors. The lower edge crept across the grass, up the spruces, and hit the horizon. The luminous presence in the sky was wider than any rainbow I had ever seen. All the stored-up beauty of days came forth in color. Slowly and splendidly, it began to move across the silent sky. The luminosity, changed from faint to deeper yellow-green, and a glorious red glowed, shading the blue, orange and violet. We watched it spread until its magnificent colors shot silently over the crouching world. Then as dramatic as it had come, it vanished. The world remained silent and motionless unaware of the magic while ducks

30 Seconds WITH THE NAZARENE

Rev. Barbara Huse, Pastor
Bethel Church of the Nazarene

Maine is called "Vacationland". We do have a beautiful state. Anywhere you go from the northernmost point to the furthest point south there is beauty. Soon the great vacation season begins lasting about 3 months. Everywhere we travel we see campers, trailers, motorboats, people just go-go-go-ing! A vacation can mean a lot of things. Some say, "Oh, if we could only just get away from it all!" Well, we cannot do that, even on a vacation you take along many of your problems. It can be a time of fun, rest, relaxation, camping, hiking, boating, swimming. Vacations should be helpful to the individual, a change from the same weekly routine. Young people are now out of school for the summer with a lot of time on their hands. More and more people have more and more leisure time. Our country has large numbers out of work. What do we do with all this time? Ever thought about taking a vacation right at home, not a very bright idea you think? We cannot all afford long trips, expensive camping equipment and all that some feel are essential for a vacation. Consider some of the things you have wanted to do but just never had the time, so now maybe you do! Enjoy your family, picnic together, play together, talk with one another for a change. Enjoy the beauty of your own wonderful town of Bethel. Say, come to think about it maybe you even have time to attend the church of your choice. You know this too can be a great family experience. Remember this, the Devil never takes a vacation. If you think he does just read about some of the things that are taking place in our own beloved state of Maine! Enjoy God's handiwork this vacation time.

On the Job With Emily

Week of July 9-13

It is generally assumed that the regular session of the Maine legislature will continue into the last week of June with the pace growing daily more hectic. At this point both House and Senate hold sessions beginning in the morning and continuing into early evening with a brief lunch break. Emily finds that the approaching recess seems to be increasing the number of phone calls from constituents, whereas earlier in the session most communication was done by letter.

The proposed Maine Criminal Code received all but final approval in the House and Senate, with House debate centering on the section decriminalizing possession of small amounts of marijuana. The House finally approved the committee version of the section which would make the possession of up to 1 and 1/2 ounces of marijuana a civil offense with a fine of up to $200. Possession of marijuana in greater amounts would be a criminal offense with the presumption that the possessor intended to sell or furnish the drug to others. Emily voted to approve the revision of the Criminal Code.

The Legislature passed the rest of Governor Longley's $703 million budget for the biennium. The section of the budget pertaining to Education had already been passed. This constitutes the largest spending package in the history of the state.

Another of the major bills approved during this week was LD 1134 which would allow thrift institutions (savings banks, savings and loans, credit unions, and industrial banks) to have personal checking account powers and bank credit cards, and certain expanded loan powers, and would allow both thrift institutions and commercial banks to have state wide branching, and interstate banking. A committee report which would have equalized interest rates on savings accounts at thrift and commercial banks was not approved.

The women legislators had their first informal get-together since January at the Springbrook Country Club in Leeds where they enjoyed dinner and a chance to meet away from the hectic pace of the State House. Veteran legislator Louis Jalbert of Lewiston has frequently said this House of Representatives was the hardest-working in his memory, and many have commented on their admirable attendance record; thus such a social outing was welcomed and deserved.
